

III. REGION ORGANIZATION

The hierarchy of the American Society of Highway Engineers consists of a National Board of Directors, a nine Region structure and their respective Sections. In designating the Regions, existing Sections were grouped according to geographic location. Regional boundaries may be revised as new Sections are formed.

A Region with two or more Sections has a Regional Board of Directors comprised in accordance with region bylaws. The primary functions of the Region are to encourage greater Section participation and communication, and to effectively serve ASHE's geographic interests.
